Playing for a good cause

Tee off and help children from distressed backgrounds

SINGAPORE – What better way to reach out to the hearts of avid golfers than with a charity golf tournament?

On Oct 3, the OCBC-TODAY Children's Fund is hosting a charity golf event at the Sentosa Golf Club's Serapong Course to raise funds for the Singapore Children's Society. The fund helps children from distressed families rebuild their lives through counselling, mentoring and therapy.

Many companies have supported the event by purchasing flights in the tournament, and one such company is the Ho Lee Group, a construction and development company.

When the Ho Lee Group heard about the OCBC-TODAY Charity Golf 2014, they decided to participate and purchase one flight in the tournament for S$5,888.

Mr Benjamin Tan, Ho Lee Group's managing director, said: "Ho Lee Group has been supporting children's charities for many years as part of our corporate social responsibility efforts.

"We wanted to support the OCBC-TODAY Children's Fund because it benefits children who are unable to fend for themselves."

In 1997, Ho Lee Group set up a Social and Recreation Committee (SRC) to encourage its staff to participate in various activities outside of work. The SRC is also actively involved in community causes, charitable giving and raising funds for the less fortunate.

Some of the activities that the SRC has organised and participated in include donations to the President's Challenge, participating in Raffles Charity Day, and contributing to the Sembawang CCC Community Development and Welfare Fund.

Mr Tan said: "Ho Lee Group also contributes selectively to education and grassroots causes. We believe education is the only means to allow the underprivileged to level up and grassroots activities promote a harmonious society that is essential for the continuous progress of Singapore."

As an avid golfer, Mr Tan is looking forward to playing on the world-class course. He has invited Ho Lee Group's partners as well as his colleagues to
